Mother's Day Symposium Answers Cry for Help and Instills Amazing Quality of Life in Women and Girls

Join Us For A Stunning Event That Will Have Women and Young Girls Jumping For Joy and Full of Life!

For centuries women have been following the footsteps of their successful predecessors – carefully - step by step!

Grandmothers have passed her success secrets of womanhood to mothers, as mothers passed them to their daughters secretly in the midnight hour.

No “fly by the seat of your pants” tales here - only time-tested and proven “Pearls of Truth”. Truthes that kept the family together for centuries.

As sure as time brings about a change, falsities crept into the wisdom of the ages and deluted truthes. Little by little overpowering the success secrets and numbing them to hearts of girls and women.

Because of this, you now come to an important decision! Do you fork over the hearts of your girls and women to a declining society or do you cross the fine line and get involved to shift the paradigm?

Think about this! Wouldn't you agree - if the mother has a problem, then the entire family has a problem? When the family has a problem, then the community has a problem; when the community has a problem, then the nation has a problem?

If this rings true, how will the problems of society be super-imposed over the lives of our darling little girls and strong, loving women?

How will these problems infiltrate and affect our schools, our businesses, our homes, and even our lives?

Women are the pivotal point in the development of a highly functional society. They are the nurturers, the first teachers, the heart-strings of the family and the glue that keeps it all together.

Whether the woman is making a living or making a life, she is either building or destroying relationships between herself and other women (and men); be it her own mother, daughter, friends or associates.

These relationships define how we operate in the world and how we operate the world.

For example, for many of today's youth, tomorrow looks bleak – at best. Technology and the media defines who they will be in tomorrow's global society. Unfortunately, this definition is not always favorable for our youth, their communities, or our nation as a whole.

At one point, the mother, family, and the extended family played the chief role in how the character of the child would be shaped and molded. Now, the media and the internet have a major influence on the “Architechure of the Invididual”.

The critical bond between mother and daughter greatly impacts a woman's bond with other women in her life. This can range anywhere from loving, to ambiguous, to strained, to downright hostile. Born out of a healthy bond are the jewels of the feminine.

Sadly, the women's timeless “secrets” and the principles of the feminine, once passed down from mother to daughter, are fast becoming rare gems, evading the soul of the female.

Today, girls are left on their own to define their “woman”; which, more often than not, leads to dysfunctional patterns of behavior. All along, defining the factors of our declining society.

“There's so much that I want to express to you. Your visit to our school started a positive domino effect for the tow of us who didn't have positive female role models at home...”

Take a moment to look around you!

How on earth can you deny that our precious little girls, and women in some cases, have outlawed provocative wisdom and the secrets of true womanhood and turned rogue?

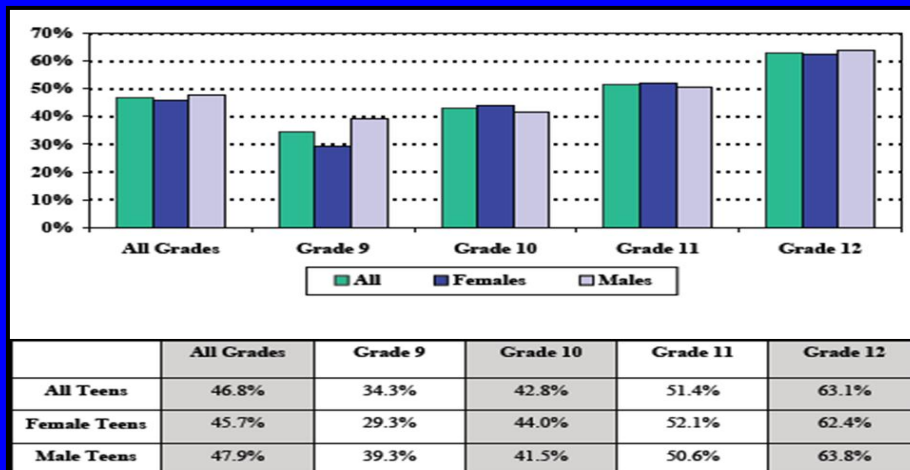

Many of our tweens (pre-teenage children) and teens have have sank to a “new” moral low. Some of the taboo issues include:

- Social and peer pressures have pinned down the moral fabric of our darling girls and young women.
- Dating violence, abuse, and sexual activity has become a moral standard among tween and teens – age ranging from 11 years to 18 years.
- Mothers and daughters square off in battle against one another shutting out the cry for help and attention.
- Good girls have gone bad and become - “Rotten to the core”.
- Lastly, millions of Grandmothers are left wielding the torch to raise our girls – due to mothers who selfishly

The Foci of [redacted] Womanhood

The foci of the entire event hinges on 3 major factors:

1. To help girls and women develop a positive self-image.

This is where the lessons of womanhood begins. Without a healthy and positive self-image, our girls, the future mothers and business woman of our society, miss the mark of success – completely!

As a sponsor of this event, you can play a critical role in this development.

2. To create healthy and nurturing relationships.

When the dust settles, it's this factor that creates lovevity where it's needed most – at home.

As a sponsor, you can share your time-tested wisdom to the girls and women at the [redacted] Womanhood event. Even to the point of communicating how relationships can be best exercised in business.

3. To provide the tools to achieve self-sufficiency.

All too often, you've seen how extreme dependency can negatively influence our girls, especially when hooking-up with Mr. Right.

Instead of allowing outside influences plant the seed of what defines our girls and women, you can take charge and join us as we launch this movement through the Womanhood.

By focusing on these 3 factors, we no longer have to wait for a miracle to come knocking at our door; we can usher in the mind-set and heart-set of "Change".

The next section will clearly outline all fo the amazing benefits you will receive as a sponsor for Womanhood.

This cycle can be broken, IF proper knowledge is introduced to our girls and women.

Will you help up us relay the message?

The Hidden Statistic of So-Called "Kinship Care"

This so-called "kinship care" is the largely unseen fallout from a confluence of social problems -- parental drug addiction, incarceration, mental illness and, more recently, military service -- that have left about 2.3 million children in the United States raised by their relatives, mainly grandparents.

Kinship caregivers come from every racial group and geographic region. Terry Mills, a sociologist at the University of Florida who surveyed 430,000 such families across the country, calls them "the silent demographic."

Fortunately, kinship care saves kids from becoming wards of the state, shunted from home to home, but often has dire consequences for their aging caregivers.
